Hot Topics in Body CT Scanning: What You Need to Know

October 21 – 24, 2017
ARIA Hotel
Las Vegas, Nevada

Course Director: Elliot K. Fishman, MD, FACR
Visit our CT Education website at www.CTISUS.com

This activity is approved for AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™.
Description
The rapid evolution of multidetector CT (MDCT) has impacted all aspects of patient diagnosis from cardiac imaging to vascular imaging to hepatic imaging. The development of these new scanners requires a close look at all aspects of our CT programs ranging from our scan protocols, to contrast injection to the use of oral contrast. The new clinical applications require a better understanding of our scanners as the “room for error” has decreased with scanners routinely acquiring datasets in under 10 seconds. New applications have evolved from coronary CTA to virtual colonoscopy to dual energy imaging, to name a few. Classic applications like imaging the liver, kidneys or pancreas have changed with the role of multiphase acquisition and post processing techniques becoming more critical. This has been both a time of change and a time of excitement. This meeting will provide the attendee with an improved understanding of the role of MDCT today and will help them improve their practice skills and knowledge base. Whether it is designing new scan protocols or learning new skill sets, this meeting will be a catalyst for increasing your core competencies through a series of lectures and hands-on training over a four-day period. The goal of the meeting is to improve your ability to do the best studies possible for optimal patient care in your own practice.

Who Should Attend
This activity is intended for radiologists and radiologic technologists.

Objectives
After attending this activity, the participant will demonstrate the ability to:

- Describe the current state-of-the-art of CT scanning today and its impact in clinical practice.
- Define the role of post processing techniques like MPR and 3D in clinical practice.
- Discuss the issues of radiation dose in CT and how to minimize dose exposure for your patients.
- Identify the newest scan protocols including the optimal use of oral and IV contrast agents.
- Recognize how to manage incidentalomas in the kidney, adrenal and pancreas.
- Define the role of Cardiac CT in practice today including study technique and optimal study design.
- Apply your expertise in abdominal imaging including details of renal, liver, kidney and bowel imaging.
- Summarize your knowledge in thoracic imaging including pulmonary embolism studies and HRCT.
- Recognize the potential role of artificial intelligence in CT scanning and radiology.
- Assess your knowledge of vascular imaging including the role of 3D imaging in these applications.

Accreditation Statement
The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Credit Designation Statement
