DESCRIPTION

The Fourth Updates in Hospital Medicine 2019 is a continuing medical education activity designed to provide a review of the most recent medical literature relevant to the care of hospitalized patients. Using an interactive, case-based format, the key highlights from all major areas of internal medicine and its specialties will be presented. Strong emphasis will be placed on how recent advances described in the medical literature can be incorporated into current clinical practice. An expert panel of distinguished academic physicians from around the country will present didactic lectures and address questions from the audience.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This activity is intended for internal medicine and family medicine physicians who primarily care for hospitalized patients. Nurse practitioners, physician assistants, residents, fellows and allied health professionals are also invited to attend.

OBJECTIVES

After attending this activity, the participant will demonstrate the ability to:

- Apply the latest developments and techniques, as well as critical decision-making, to identify the best clinical management of specific conditions encountered by hospitalists.
- Assess the new techniques and technology that may lead to the adoption of new procedures, products or new training in specific areas.
- Create a safer environment for patients by avoiding treatment complications to improve patient outcomes.

ACCREDITATION STATEMENT

The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

CREDIT DESIGNATION STATEMENT

The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 15 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
