Wilmer Eye Institute Oculoplastics Course

Saturday, January 27, 2018
DESCRIPTION
Oculoplastics is a multi-faceted field that is constantly evolving. The periocular region may be affected by acquired conditions, including trauma, infection, malignancy, and anophthalmia, as well as systemic disease, such as thyroid associated orbitopathy. Understanding new developments in the field is essential to providing optimal care of patients with disorders of the eyelids, lacrimal system and orbit, which can have serious ophthalmic consequences and may confer morbidity both locally and systemically. Experts in the field will discuss the pathophysiology and optimal management of eyelid, lacrimal system and orbital disease, along with a panel discussion of periocular reconstruction techniques.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND
This activity is intended for comprehensive ophthalmologists, optometrists, pediatric ophthalmologists, ophthalmology residents and fellows, primary care physicians, otolaryngologists, otolaryngology residents and fellows, facial plastic surgeons and fellows, plastic surgeons, plastic surgery residents and fellows.

OBJECTIVES
After attending this activity, the participant will demonstrate the ability to:
• Describe the current management of various forms of periocular trauma, including eyelid and orbital reconstruction.
• Identify different periocular tumors and discuss their treatment.
• Compare and contrast different methods of managing exposure keratopathy.
• Describe changes in the eyelids and orbit that are associated with glaucoma treatment.
• Discuss the causes and management of tearing.
• Describe the advantages and disadvantages of various orbital imaging modalities.
• Outline current medical and surgical management of orbital inflammatory disease including thyroid associated or bitopathy.
• Identify and discuss the management of periocular infections.
• Identify issues in management of the anophthalmic socket.
• Describe various techniques used for periocular rejuvenation.

Acknowledgement
Applications for commercial support from health care related industries are pending. A complete list of contributors will be provided in the syllabus. Please note that commercial support received is solely for the educational component of the activity and will not be used to provide food and beverage.

Please note: The Physician Payments Sunshine Act was enacted by Congress to increase public awareness of financial relationships between drug and medical device manufacturers and physicians. In compliance with the requirements of this Act, the commercial supporter/s of this activity may require the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine to report certain professional information (such as name, address, National Provider Identifier (NPI), and State License number) of physician attendees who receive complimentary food and beverage in conjunction with a CME activity. The commercial supporter is required to submit the collected data to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services which will then publish the data on its website.
