Multidisciplinary Management of Hepatocellular Carcinoma

September 28, 2024

The Johns Hopkins Hospital
Chevy Chase Conference Center
Baltimore, Maryland

Livestream Option Available

This activity has been approved for AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™.
DESCRIPTION
The Multidisciplinary Management of Hepatocellular Carcinoma conference is a comprehensive program that features expert-led lectures, interactive case studies, and engaging panel discussions, providing invaluable insights for optimizing patient care and outcomes. The conference will feature a variety of case-based discussions in hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC).

WHO SHOULD ATTEND
This activity is intended for providers in Internal Medicine, Oncologists, Hepatologists, Internists, and any health care provider who treats patients living with hepatocellular carcinoma.

OBJECTIVES
After attending this activity, the learner will demonstrate the ability to:

• Diagnose hepatocellular carcinoma using the latest imaging techniques and diagnostic criteria, as measured by case-based assessments.
• Demonstrate the ability to implement current evidence-based treatment protocols, including immunotherapy and targeted therapies in clinical practice, evaluated through pre- and post-activity surveys.
• Improve their competence in integrating multidisciplinary care approaches for HCC patients, as evidenced by improved performance in simulated team-based care scenarios.
• Identify and apply effective early detection strategies for at-risk populations, measured by knowledge retention tests administered before and after the activity.
